

Greetings, alleged human! Congratulations on your recent achievement of a Technician amateur radio license! We, the Narwhal Amateur Radio Society (NARS), welcome you to a hobby which elevates nerdy mucking about into a “hobby of a lifetime” of sufficient cachet that one can discuss it at dinner parties without leaving in shame. In this, we are doing better than Bitcoin bros or other fraudsters, so we consider ourselves a success! At NARS, we believe that ham radio is a fun hobby, a way to experiment with weird stuff, and a way to meet fellow interesting nerds. We’re dedicated to three principles: 1. diversifying the field and practice of amateur radio; 2. fostering joy and goodwill for all people in radio and related disciplines; and 3. opposing the use of amateur radio as an accessory to state violence and oppression. If those all sound like good things to you, flip this card over!
